

Jubilant Of Westerly Wheelmen

Cycle Club Dines and Spends Social Evening—Judge Williams Orders Seized Liquors Destroyed—Continuation Granted in Ecclestone Non-Support Case—Warren Company Building Freight Depot in Financial Difficulties—Norwich-Westerly Traction Petition Comes Before the House.

The third district court, Judge Williams, convened Friday morning, charged with an assault with a dangerous weapon upon Judge Williams, which has twice been continued, was continued for another week, as the case was unable to appear in court by reason of the wound inflicted by the assault.

The first case called for trial was that against the seized liquors, and vessels containing the same, belonging to James H. Blackler, the hotelier, who held liquor license in 1912, but who made no application for renewal, although it is alleged he continued in the business.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown testified that he had the liquors seized in his possession in the police station. He secured the liquors at 73 Pierce street in a building occupied by James H. Blackler and was seized by a seizure of a search warrant. Accompanied by Officers West and Ferguson in a room below the bottling plant the liquors were found and the bottles on the floor above. There was government license on the premises for the sale of intoxicating liquors. Mr. Blackler claimed the liquors and beer were his property and he was getting rid of them as fast as he could. Officers Ferguson and West gave corroborative testimony. The value of the goods was placed below $500 and is one of the largest made in Westerly for many years.

Charles Girard testified he resided in White Rock and knew Albert Williams employed by Blackler. He has had beer delivered at his home by Williams and paid him for it. He usually ordered the beer by the case. Judge Williams declared the liquors forfeited to the state and warrants issued for destruction of liquors and destruction or sale of the vessels.

The non-support case of Elery C. Barber, overseer of the poor, against Hugh Ecclestone for non-support, was called. After consultation between Town Solicitor Agard and Attorney Redwidge, counsel for defendant, the latter stated to the court that he was ready to enter a plea of nolo and would ask the court to suspend judgment for two weeks in the hope that a settlement may be effected in the interim. Mr. Agard had no objection to a continuance of two weeks, though action in cases of this nature was to compel the man to support his children, which was difficult to do as he had remarried and had two families to support, and that it might be necessary to send the children to a state institution. Ecclestone is a carpenter and does not do his best to support those dependent upon him. His best earnings are hardly adequate. He has four children by his first wife, from whom he is divorced, that he is bound to support. He has remarried and taken another family to support. If the earnings of Ecclestone are inadequate the state must assume the responsibility of the support of the children. He believed that Ecclestone should be punished, but would not object to continuation for two weeks.

Judge Williams said that, judging from statements made, Ecclestone ought to be punished and punished severely. He had no right to throw the burden of the support of the children upon the state and no right under the circumstances to assume a second marriage, and is not entitled to any consideration by the court, unless there may be evidence introduced that should warrant leniency. The case was continued for two weeks.

The next case called was of a civil nature, that of Charles P. Ecclestone against Earl Asher to recover $11 and costs. This is an outcome of a criminal suit in which Asher was charged with theft of the amount claimed. He was employed as a carpenter and after receiving pay from Foreman Mineault, went to the office and demanded and received his pay envelope, knowing that he had been paid in full previously. Appeal was taken in the criminal case to the superior court. Judgment was rendered in plaintiff's favor for $11.66 and costs. Subsequently there was lengthy discussion as to the mode of procedure regarding body attachment, in which several legal points were raised, and which were taken under advisement by the judge until the next regular court day.

Joseph McQuirk, arraigned on the charge of intoxication, pleaded guilty. When asked if he had money to pay a fine he said if the court would parole him in the custody of an officer he could get the money. When asked concerning his familiarity with court house he replied that he had served in the army and had two excellent discharges. He was fined $2 and costs and paroled in the custody of an officer as requested.

In the monthly contest in the School Arts guild these Westerly school pupils were among the winners, together with pupils of New London schools. Second prizes to Minnie Cherrill, Fred Dotolo of Westerly and Theodore Dolan of New London. Third prize, Michael Forende of Westerly. Fourth prizes, Violet Greenway and Harold Rowan of Westerly and Ella Francis and Rose Leville of New London. Special prizes, Josephine Albamont, William Barber, Walter Brown, Theresa Ferraro, Alexander Pasetti and Antonio Ruffel of Westerly.

The annual dinner and general celebration of the Westerly Cycle club was held Friday night and nearly all the resident members participated. The members assembled at the club room in Main street and at 10 o'clock, headed by the Cycle club band, Prof. Charles Redford, leader, made a short street parade which terminated at Hibernian hall. Here a turkey supper, with all the accessories and some more was served, followed by brief addresses by several members.

Then there came a social session of a purely informal nature. The music was by the Cycle club orchestra, Professor Redford, leader, and there was entertainment by professional celebrities in the vaudeville line and by local entertainers.

The E. K. Watson company of Warren, R. I., who have a contract for the construction of the freight depot in Westerly, now nearly completed, for the new town hall and court building. The Warren concern was awarded the contract for the freight depot in competition with local and other builders was considered thoroughly reliable, and had no trouble in opening accounts with some Westerly firms. It is possible that the financial entanglement may be straightened out and the company given substantial rating, but there are business men in Westerly who are of the opinion that settlement will be made with creditors on a 50 per cent basis.

Local Laceries.
Morton Hiscox of Chicago, formerly of Westerly, is here on a brief visit.

The Groton & Stonington trolley line resumes half hour trips today (Saturday).

Henry Nott of Westerly, a former resident of New London, who has been in the employ of the Standard Oil company here, started Friday for Los Angeles, where he expects to locate.

These officers were elected at the annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary society of Grace Methodist church: Mrs. John T. Parker, president; Mrs. Thomas Nichols, vice president; Mrs. William Rook, secretary; Mrs. Charles Rowling, treasurer.

An act was introduced in the Rhode Island house of representatives Thursday providing for notice on the petition of the petition of the Norwich & Westerly Traction company for a charter in Rhode Island, as a part of its recently acquired properties are within the state. No privileges are asked that do not already exist. The matter was ordered on the calendar.

Sergeant John B. Brown recently presented the Westerly Memorial and Latham association the silk flag that the ladies of North Stonington presented to Company G, Twenty-first regiment, just prior to the company's departure to aid in defense of the Union. This flag was then returned to a representative of the Wheeler family. There are residents of North Stonington who believe that the proper place for preservation of that particular flag is in the Wheeler school and library of North Stonington.

NOANK
Session of Mission Study Class—Men's Class Entertains—Body of William Latham Arrives for Burial.

Your Confidence Will Not Be Betrayed

From out of the goodness of your hearts you gave me a whole-souled reception last week, the memory I will cherish forever.

A week of reflection has but served to increase my appreciation. "TOM"

'Twas magnificent—the response you made to my simple little announcements. Prominent business men tell me that its like has never been seen before in this city. And I am ready to believe them.

It began early at 8 o'clock in the morning on my opening day. I had six suits and from then on until tired nature intervened and obliged me to shut up shop for the evening. It was one long seemingly endless procession. Doctors, lawyers, mechanics, shop-workers and craftsmen of all trades were its personnel.

And it is safe to say that not one of the throng who came was aware of the disheartening circumstances under which I am today obliged to laugh over—thank goodness.

Many of those who came Saturday went back home without being waited on. I could not take care of them. I want those men back again. I want them to know that Tom Murray "does make good clothes cheap."

Therefore I offer again today the inducement that was so attractive in my first announcement—

$5. Pants FREE

The price for a Suit or Top Coat that I am positive you cannot duplicate under $25 will be
